It is not coming from institutions, it is a grass roots movement crossing political, religious and traditional lines. It is so pervasive, it could be called a new global religion. It could represent hope for the world in a Global context, and it is rising from the connected generation, the global generation. How will it impact churches, political parties and socio-economic balances? Can it be the worlds hope for peace? New Paradigm for Religion Politics and Economics Religious and political language is often a negative language. Religion is defined by the negative aspects of another religion. The emerging religion of the global generation is revolutionary, in that the language is not a negative one based upon exclusivist judgementalism, but a new positive language, based upon what we have in common with profound socio-economic implications.
