

Tyranny of the Bottom Line: Why Corporations Make Good People Do Bad Things

In a thought-provoking proposal which maintains that corporations be held responsible to their customers, employees, and society, as well as to their financial investors, Estes lays out a plan to reform the corporate system which could result in a savings to society of up to $2.5 trillion.

Posted on April 25, 2011 1 comment. The Alchemical Garden site February 2010 GAL is turning a desolate area of woods into a visually compelling garden that will educate and engage the community for years to come. Located on a 160 x 25 site near the conversion of Newburyport's Clipper City Rail Trail, the Alchemical Garden is a shared evolving art and horticulture experience that is accessible on many different levels to the community. The Alchemical Garden is designed to become a model for a sustainable, interactive living structure using native plantings and recycled materials. The ancient discipline of alchemy is the key for transforming a common material into gold. The Alchemical Garden will lead the community to transform on a number of levels : Alchemical Garden with Spring Wheat "Crop Circles" June, 2011 BUILD COMMUNITY: The Garden creates a gathering space for individuals to form a more intimate relationship with their community. The space is designed with visual features and seating areas to compel passers-by to pause, reflect, and have a multi-sensory interactive experience (sight, smell, touch, taste, smell) with the garden and the community.
